

Fight Between State and U. S. Bureau of Roads Is Old One

Arkansas was warned by the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads yesterday that unless she spends more on trunk highways and less on secondary routes she may find some of her projects turned down by the federal agency.

And the federal agency, with delegated power from the National Production Authority on road-building steel, seems able to carry out its threat.

Yesterday's warning was caused by publication of the State Highway Commission's latest list of requests for road bids. The list showed only nine projects on the primary road system, for a total estimate of about 3 million dollars, as against 30 secondary projects totaling nearly 5 million.

The proportion for the trunk system isn't high enough to establish a "reasonable" balance, the federal bureau warned.

All of us want good roads everywhere, and Hope is gratified that after 20 years of "promising" by many administrations we have finally gotten hard-surfaced highways to Lewisville, on the south, and to Nashville and all the way to Glenwood, on the north. But the fact remains that highway construction costs money wherever it is done, while most of the gasoline-tax revenue is generated on a particular set of roads—the primary or trunk system.

It is obvious to every citizen that roads like U. S. 67, with its hundreds of thousands of tourists and truckers, is generating the big end of the money that pays for all highway construction. Therefore U. S. 67 has to be kept in top shape. Its present shape is deplorable.

Criticism from the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads is no new thing. There is more or less constant conflict between the federal bureau and state highway departments everywhere—the inescapable conflict of federal versus local desires. But yesterday's federal criticism comes at a proper moment and should be taken by Arkansas with good grace—for our own benefit.

We risk financial disaster for all roads unless the trunk highways are put in condition to invite tourist traffic instead of warning tourist traffic away.

For when tourist traffic is diverted the gasoline-tax dollars are diverted along with it.

Snyder Asks $3 Billion More in Taxes

Washington, June 28 — (P) — The Truman administration today asked the senate to add about $3,000,000,000 more to the house-approved boost in individual income and excise (sales) taxes.

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder told the senate finance committee the $7,200,000,000 tax hike voted by the house is insufficient, because it threatens to put the government in the red and add to inflationary pressures.

Backing up his plea Snyder said the government already has started borrowing money again to make ends meet and will have to borrow "several billion dollars" in the next six months. It is the first time in nearly a year that the government has had to resort to deficit financing.

Congress, he insisted, should provide at least the roughly $10,000,000,000 in extra taxes asked by President Truman originally — and should aim chiefly at individual income and excise taxes for the $3,000,000,000 addition to the house tax bill.

The house measure would raise individual income taxes by 12 1/2 per cent to provide an extra $2,847,000,000 in yearly revenues. Excise taxes on gasoline, tobacco and many other items would be boosted by varying amounts to bring in $1,352,000,000 more annually.

Snyder was the leadoff speaker as the senate committee opened hearings on higher taxes, using the house bill as the cornerstone of its deliberations.

The tax increases in the house bill aggregate $3,000,000,000 less than the $16,000,000,000 tax legislation goal set by the President for this year.

Snyder said in a prepared statement, "The net yield of the bill is about $7,000,000,000 a year. The increases in the house bill required to meet the President's program can be obtained from two general areas, selective excises and the individual income tax."

Snyder also repeated a demand for a tougher capital gains tax—the levy on profit from property sales—in the tax system, partly by reducing tax-reducing privileges of the oil and coal industries and by stiffening rules on family partnership setups.

Snyder noted that the house bill would yield only $2,847,000,000 in extra revenue from individual income taxes against the $3,000,000,000 asked by the administration.

To make up that difference, he proposed a one percentage point increase in the tax rates in addition to the house-approved boost.

State Marble Champ Returns Home, Describes Experiences at National Tournament

Chris Cook and his mother, Mrs. Fred Cook, returned from Albuquerque, N. M., where the Hope youth won the national marble tournament, Chris was the Arkansas champion in the VFW-sponsored event.

Here is their account of the tournament and event held for the boys:

The first days was devoted to registration and drawing for places. This was followed by a parade which was led by Chris who carried the Arkansas banner. A dinner followed with city officials and the Governor of New Mexico as special guests.

That night the boys were amazed by Indian dances and the following morning they visited the village which had 1,600 inhabitants in a place no larger than a city block. They were taken through the village and saw how the Indians live, entered the village war council chamber and visited a church that was built in 1621.

The main luncheon of the tournament was held at the Alvarado Hotel and Mrs. Cook made a talk in behalf of the local VFW organization and presented guests with small baseball bats manufactured by the Bruner-Ivory Handle Co., and other souvenirs.

The "Snow White" show which is enroute to perform in Arkansas also entertained the group.

One interest was a visit to the Mazel Indian jewelry manufacturing plant which makes most of the trinkets sold to tourists.

All during the tournament representatives and photographers from several large magazines were present. They were delighted when Chris came out barefooted to take his turn in the tourney and when he was defeated he cried and the photographers snapped another picture. So don't be surprised if the next issue of your favorite magazine carries a picture of the barefooted boy from Arkansas.

All the youngsters in the tournament were given dozens of small gifts and the winners received motorbikes, trophies, bicycles and radios, and a sportsmanship award was given.

Perhaps the entertainment that the boys enjoyed best of all was a rodeo that featured Red Snyder and Little Beaver in person. During the rodeo the boys were admitted to the arena and rode calves and horses.

The marble tournament was a double elimination affair that was captured by a youth from Utah who was one of the first six winners last year. There were 39 boys entered and it was described as a "wonderful experience for them whether they won or not." Special marbles were imported from Germany for the meet and young Cook's proudest possession is a $1.25 German-made law.

Mrs. Cook described the tournament as wonderful for the boys, but a little hard on the sponsors. She especially was thankful to Cary Carlton, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Carlton of Hope, and his wife for taking care of them during their trip. Carlton, a native of Hope, now lives in Albuquerque.

With losing and finding my purse and surviving a tornado that halted the train at Muleshoe, Ne Mexico, it was really a fine experience for me as well as Chris, Mrs. Cook said.

It was the first trip either had made out west.

Degrees to Hope Pair at Oklahoma

Thomas C. Jobe and Billy Irene Jobe, his wife of Hope, were awarded master degrees at the University of Oklahoma, Norman, Oklahoma this month, and university officials said it was the first time in the school's history that a married couple.

Mrs. Jobe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fay James, 109 E. 12th st., Hope, took as the subject of her thesis for a master of science degree "Microfauna of Basal Midway Outcrops Near Hope, Ark., which research she was helped by her husband, who also printed the document. It will be used in geological survey work throughout Arkansas.

Mr. Jobe, son of Mrs. Sara Jobe, formerly of Hope and now living in Washington, D. C., was with the Star until joining the Navy in 1942, where he became a lieutenant (j. g.). He was given his masters degree in geology this month at O. U., and has just entered the employ of Humble Oil Refining company.

Home Management is required of all students who receive a certificate in Vocational Home Economics. The course requires among other things that the students live at the Home Management House for six weeks during the summer session or nine weeks during the long term.

Miss Anna Maxwell, associate professor of Home Economics director.

The students schedule the work so that all jobs rotate each week. Every phase of home management is covered. They have to be cooks, assistant cooks, laundresses, housekeepers, and hostesses. They plan and prepare meals, clean the house and do everything that housekeeping entails. In addition, each group usually has some house improvement project.

The personnel of the house has changed much since Miss Maxwell became director. "It was rare to have a married student when I first came," she said, "but since World War II, often the majority are housewives who have returned to school."

Local Woman Is Safety Meet Delegate

Mrs. Paul Klipsch returned last night from Little Rock where she attended the State Safety Council meeting and workshop for local safety council leaders. Mrs. Klipsch said that plans were discussed at this meeting for the continuation of the safety program in Arkansas, and she said the local councils would play a big part in this program.

Camden Youths Jailed for Car Stealing

Houston, June 28 — (P) — James Delmar Deaton, 17-year-old Camden, Ark., youth will get a bed-side arraignment today in the Montgomery county hospital at Conroe near here, on a charge of transporting a stolen automobile across state lines.

He and Earl Roy Hellum, 19, another Camden youth, were arrested Sunday night near New Caney Tex., about 25 miles north of Houston, after the car which they are accused of stealing in Little Rock was wrecked in a collision.

Kellum, likewise charged with the interstate transportation of an automobile, was arraigned yesterday in Houston and held in default of $1,500 bond.

Two girls with the youths at the time of the wreck are still free. They, too, have been charged.

A. F. Lorton, Jr., agent in charge of the Houston FBI office said one was Betty Joan Ellis, 22, and the other a girl known only as Mary Catherine, about 18.

Lorton said Deaton told the FBI the four were on their way back to Arkansas when the accident happened.

The stolen car was wrecked in a collision as they fled from a farm house after they had been discovered siphoning gasoline from a truck into the car, Lorton said.

Lorton also said Kellum told him that the youths had met the girls in a Little Rock skating rink. After stealing a car they broke into a store at Guy, Ark., Lorton said.

The agent said Kellum claimed they got $900 for the merchandise they stole from the store.

Council Delays on School Survey

Little Rock, June 28 — (P) — The Arkansas legislative council has put off a decision on hiring an out-of-state firm to survey Arkansas public schools.

No Additional Candidates Have Announced

The political situation seems to have settled down somewhat but a couple of last day candidates are likely.

Bob Daniels, Livestock Show treasurer, said today that he definitely would not enter the race for mayor. As it stands its a three-way affair with Chuck Armitage, John L. Wilson and Joe Jones already announced.

In Ward one W. G. Gentry, C. W. Tarpley and Charles Wylie are seeking the aldermanic post; In ward 2, J. W. B. Mason and Jesse Brown; Ward 3, incumbent Webb Laseter Jr., and Howard Byers and in Ward 4, H. C. Murphy.

Also filing for re-election was Charles Reynerson, city treasurer.

350 Veterans Study Experiment Station Methods

More than 350 on-the-farm, trainees in the veterans' program toured the Fruit and Truck Experiment Station today in search of more knowledge.

Dr. E. O. McLean, assistant professor of agronomy from Fayetteville, urged the young farmers to approach the soil conservation problem from a "practical standpoint." He said that it took nature 10,000 years to build seven inches of topsoil, which on some farms had been removed in less than 100 years of irresponsible row-crop farming.

While the group looked at nine different research plots set up to test soil and water losses, McLean pointed out the differences in results. For example, the plot that had been in continuous row crop had lost soil at the rate of 12 tons per acre since the experiment was begun in 1939. An adjoining plot that had been in Bermuda sod had had a negligible loss of one-tenth a ton of soil during the same period.

The difference in water loss was almost as great, he added. The row crop plot had lost 18 inches of water, while the grass plot lost little more than one inch.

"Everyone knows that most farmers can't put all of their land in grass, and still make a living," McLean declared. "However, most of you can follow a rotation system; see that the land is covered with a grass or clover when not otherwise in use, and use contour cultivation and terraces where needed."

Those interested in peach production saw nine different varieties under experimentation here. Dr. J. E. Valle, associate professor of horticulture, told visitors that the Early-Red-Fire is proving the best early variety for this section. It matures seven weeks before Elberta.

Its Enough to Make a Bald Headed Man Mad and Boyle Calls for Unified Action

By HAL BOYLE

New York — (P) — Bald-headed men of America, arise! The enemy is attacking us again. They're at our very gates. Who's our foe this time? Nobody but our old cutthroat buddies—the nation's barbers. Who'd have thought those gay blades would ever razor voices against us? But listen!

"Men with hair are more virile and romantic than those who are bald."

That bare-headed slander came today from Nick Caluthis, president of the United Master Barbers of America.

"Although there may be no biological relationship between baldness and virility," he added, "the confidence that goes with having a full head of hair gives men more nerve in their amours."

"Barbers know very well that a woman regards a man's hair in the same light as a man regards a woman's figure."

Well, how does a wise man prevent a woman's figure? Covered with a buffalo belt?

Caluthis tied off on us baldies in releasing his organization's annual selection of the "ten best male heads of hair in America."

Contract Let for Paving Hope, Fulton Highway

Little Rock, June 28 — (P) — Contracts for 17 highway projects were let yesterday by the Arkansas highway commission.

It was the largest lump of road work contracted at one time in the history of the state.

Bids on three projects in the series of 20 were rejected. They were:

Construction of a bridge on the Mytheville-north road, highway 1 — rejected for the third time.

Widening of six bridges on the Alma-Mulberry road, highway 4. Three miles of grading, gravel base and bituminous surface course on the Kelsor-north and south road, highway 101.

Bids accepted by the commission, the contractor and the low bid included:

Hempstead county, 12.4 miles of asphalt concrete base and surface course on the Fulton-Hope road, highway 7. Southwest General Construction company of Dallas, $493,011.

Miller county 8.3 miles of grading and drainage structures on the pump's spur-northeast road, highway 7. Reynolds and Williams of Little Rock, $11,071.

Presbyterian Bible School to Close Friday

The Daily Vacation Church school being conducted at the First Presbyterian Church, will close with a picnic Friday night, June 20th at Fair Park. This picnic is to be a Pot Luck affair with the Sunday School furnishing the drinks and dessert.

Anyone who has attended the Vacation Church School, and all members of the church and their families are invited to attend the picnic which will begin at 7:30.

A special program will be presented at the evening worship service at the Presbyterian church on Sunday night, July 1st. Various departments of the school and handwork will be displayed.

The choir will be made up of children from all departments who will sing "This Hymn." This service will begin at 8:00 p. m.

Jonesboro Man Heads Pharmacy

Little Rock June 28 — (P) — Herbert W. Baker, Jonesboro, pharmacist, has been elected president of the state board of pharmacy at its monthly meeting here.

Baker, who has served on the board for 25 years on appointments from five governors, is president of the Arkansas Pharmaceutical board's foundation.

Caluthis, advocating daily brushing. "Keep it exercised, and it won't let you down—or fall down."

Operating on this theory, the average barber must go home at night to tired to take an arm to his own head. Many barbers meet long less like baldies than they do Mexican hairdressers.

As a matter of fact, barbers usually seem to have a marked distaste for customers with short, mat-thick cranial scrubbery. It is easier to clip a long-than-hack a patch through a fringe.

What forward-looking man of taste today wants to keep his hair anyway? It falls in his eyes, gets caught in electric fans, grows over his ears and makes it hard for him to hear over the telephone. It isn't of help to him in any way, except as a sign that he is old.

Hope Resident Back in 1875 Pays City a Visit

An old resident visited Hope this morning enroute from Houston, Texas to a family reunion in Missouri.

He was James Kincaid, who admitted to being past 80. He was the brother of Mrs. Pat Donnelly whose husband was one of the founders of this city.

Mr. Kincaid came to Hope in 1875. He lived with his sister and attended the first school here, which he said, was taught by Miss Molly Malone. He left Hope in 1878 and has only passed through since.

Mr. Kincaid fondly recalled Capt. Jack Bridwell and Mr. Donnelly who he says, lived in a tent a there were no houses.

He was accompanied here by an uncle, Rex Dixon of the San Diego Calif., Historical Society. Mr. Kincaid said he was the last of his family and this would probably be his final visit through Hope.

Chinese Attacks May Be Start of New Push

Tokyo June 28 — (P) — "Thin derling Allied" artillery today smashed a series of Chinese attacks which Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet warned may be forerunners of a new Red offensive in Korea.

The United Nations ground command forecast no "major thrust immediately." But, he said on a tour of the fighting fronts, "the Chinese appear to be building up for another effort 'to overrun U. N. lines."

Neither Van Fleet nor the Supreme Allied headquarters of Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway would discuss a Russian cease fire proposal.

Van Fleet said he knew nothing about it.

"Of course, in our hearts, we all want peace," Van Fleet said. "But we won't let up on the enemy."

Sharp fighting flared all across the central front as opposing armies continually probed enemy lines.

Heaviest action was near Kimbwa where a Red battalion attacked a U. N. division last night. Allied artillery broke up the attack in the early morning hours.

Other attacks followed that night. All were smashed.

In the adjoining Kumkang sector, two other Red battalions beat back Allied efforts to probe defences in that Red building area.

One powerful Allied tank infantry task force, with supporting artillery, picked its way through mine fields on the rugged northwestern front against stout opposition. It pounded a Red ridge line guarding an important east-west road, far northwest of Choryon, before withdrawing.

At Choryon, a U. N. officer indicated it was a desperate battle. U. N. penetration of this area would mean the end of the war.

Allied patrols moved freely in the mountain's lanes between Choryon and Kumkang, but were held back by mines on the western front southwest of Choryon.

The North Korean army command reported a Communist offensive against the U. N. line around Kumkang and shot down two U. N. planes.

The Red army's continuing offensive against the U. N. line in the front, "the most important," the U. N. command commented.

This stubbornly defensive attitude shows that the Reds don't want to go to the North Korean front.

Russia Wants to Negotiate an Armistice

Washington, June 28 — (P) — The state department announced today that Russia has proposed to the United Nations, North Korean and Red Chinese commanders a new armistice.

The Soviet Union suggested a "limited" armistice, "to stop military operations."

The proposal was made today by Andrei Gromyko, Soviet foreign minister, in a speech in Moscow.

Gromyko, the department said, "indicated that it would be a military representatives of the United Nations command and the North Korean command and the Chinese volunteers' command."

The state department announced that the original Russian proposal was in a speech Saturday.

Large-Scale Layoffs in Auto Plants

Detroit, June 28.—(AP)—The auto industry, pinched both by materials shortages and credit controls, today began largescale layoffs.

At least 23,000 workers are to be laid off today.

This brings dividends for the company's fiscal year to 30 percent, the same as in the preceding 12 months.

be dismissed for indefinite periods, with tens of thousands of others scheduled to follow later in the year.

Some of these shutdowns, however, will be of short duration.

The mounting dismissals brought from the CIO United Auto Workers union a demand for "speeding up" defense work in plants now being hit by materials short ages.

The biggest of the layoff announcements came from Chrysler Corp., which said that it will cut 15,000 workers from its plants by Friday. Another 2,500 will be paid off in July it said.

Briggs Manufacturing Co. said that it is laying off 800 workers in Detroit area plants and 1,200 at Evansville, Ind.

Ford Motor Co. earlier announced that it would lay off 10,000 men between July and October and would operate some assembly plants on a four-day basis.

General Motors, which has cut 15,000 from its payrolls already this year, has announced that it will close all car manufacturing and assembly plants in Michigan from July 28 to August 1.

Similar shutdowns are planned in other parts and assembly plants plants throughout the country but no dates have been announced.

Nash-Kelvinator Corp. announced Wednesday that it will close its seven plants in Michigan, Wisconsin and California for two weeks in July for employee vacations. A total of 22,000 workers will be affected.

Other auto firm layoffs, previously reported, are Kaiser-Frazer Corp., 4500 in the last three months Packard 1,000 in the spring and Hudson 3,500, two weeks ago.

Studebaker Corp., at South Bend, Ind., also has announced that it will shut down its passenger car plants from Friday until July 9. A total of 14,000 workers will be laid off.

Chrysler Corp. blamed a shortage of materials for its layoffs. Other manufacturers also have agreed that this is the prime reason recently. They also have blamed a government credit control for slowing up new car buying.

Almost all the major auto producers have defense contracts of one kind or another, but these are not expected to take up employment slack until late in the year or early in 1952.

Food Poisoning Hits Hospital Patients

Memphis, June 28 — (UP) — Food poisoning at the modern 400-bed west Tennessee tuberculosis hospital, caused an estimated 125 patients, doctors, nurses and other workers violently ill hospital officials disclosed today.

Patients collapsed in the corridors. One patient said that he went out into the hallway and the corridors were full of patients on the floor.

"Some of them were on stretchers," he said. "Others were being taken to their beds."

Samplings of chicken salad eaten last night were sent to the health department for tests. Those stricken included Dr. F. H. Alley, hospital director.

Alley, and a large number of the 388 patients and personnel had been served chicken salad.

First cases started about 7 p.m., two hours after the meal had been served. Those in the hospital were treated on the premises, and workers already at home, were taken to other hospitals.

Immediate effects were acute and violent, but all those stricken were reported out of danger.

Stella Kane, 43-year-old nurse, said that "patients began collapsing all over the place."

One physician expressed the belief it was staphylococcus, a type of bacteria thriving during periods of heat and humidity. The mercury has reached 95 degrees in recent days.

The hospital said that many patients on special diets were not served the chicken salad, and thus escaped the illness.

One patient said he "got badly nauseated all at once. I felt dizzy and fell against the wall."

Monday in Waldo where they bought a new home.

DOROTHY DIX Vacillating Beau

Dear Miss Dix: Three months ago I met a man whom I've been seeing very steadily since. From the very start he told me he was separated from his wife and child. He has professed his love for me on numerous occasions. We have stirred many interests in each other that have been long dormant. He respects my moral code of conduct and says he has more than a physical love for me. He thinks I would make a wonderful wife and mother, and that he'd always be happy with me.

He admits his wife still has attractions for him, but lacks the depth he sees in me. Because he feels he can't promise anything he has told me to go with others. Although he has been unhappy with his wife, he says he would go back to her if she needed him as he could learn to tolerate her because of the child. He cannot bear the thought of his wife remarrying and have his child who is 4, calling another man Daddy.

Would a man be content to live with a woman for the sake of a child, or is he using this as an excuse knowing he cares for his wife more than he wants to admit? This is not the first time they have separated. Is the man confused, or does he seem to know what he wants? Should I hang on and hope, drop the affair completely, or go on seeing him and other men as well?

EDNA Answer: You have become the third figure in a very unpleasant triangle, but inasmuch as you have known this man only three months I'd say your emotions are not completely involved that you can't drop the whole affair and look around for some nice men who will have more consideration for you.

Still Loves Wife Your friend still loves his wife and you are merely a companion to while away his lonely hours until she beckons and agrees to take him back. He also loves his child but his concern for her is, as you have inferred, largely a cover-up for his feelings towards his wife.

There is certainly no future here for you, Edna. You can hang on and hope, but believe me hope is all you'll get out of the whole affair. Friend wife here, as always, holds the winning hand and when she's ready to play it hubby will drop everything else and rush home to her. That of course, is as it should be. His place is with his wife and child, and whatever the reason for their unstable existence it's no concern of yours.

Look to your own happiness, which you'll find with someone who has at least progressed beyond the kindergarten stage of wanting his own toys and everyone else's too.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am a young married man with a sweet wife, who says she loves me. She is an only child and her father has always given her everything she wanted. While I give my wife everything I can afford, that doesn't satisfy her and she goes to her father for things, which humiliates me. Whenever we have an argument she tells her father about it and she thinks that he should tell me what to do. I don't like that. I don't want her father to boss me as if I were a little boy. What shall I do?

WORRIED HUSBAND Answer: I don't think you should object to your wife's father giving her presents. Certainly it is no more than fair that a father, who has cultivated extravagant habits in his daughter, and indulged her in every thing, should help the young man she marries support her.

But you have a just grievance in your wife running to her father with all the tales of your little quarrels. That is not a loyal or wifely thing to do. If she has any sense at all, she should know that the inevitable result will be to make her father think that you are mistreating her and that she is a poor, persecuted innocent who has thrown herself away upon a man who doesn't appreciate her.

Also she is lacking in knowledge

Congress Makes Hash of Lawmaking

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, June 28 — (AP) — This congress — between sitting on its hands and conducting business — has made hash of its regular job of lawmaking.

In this the senate has been worse than the house. The result: Such delay in vital legislation that the senate, at least, must stay here all summer.

Since nothing can become law unless both houses approve, it would have made no difference how fast the house alone worked. And the senate has lagged behind the house, away behind.

Various suggestions have been made around Washington to explain the tardiness, such as these: That President Truman, even though his Democrats are in a majority, has lost so much control over congress he can't get the lawmakers to work with him; that some of the Republicans — and some Democrats, too — are so antagonistic to Mr. Truman that they've been lying back, doing nothing; and that some of the congressional committees, where the lawmaking starts, have been doing nothing.

But not the least of the reasons for delay is this: The senators have turned into such a bunch of quizzmasters, they've let their regular lawmaking job slide.

Each year seems to bring its own sensation which then is expanded into an investigation, giving the senators — besides information — a chance to play politics and make the headlines.

This year there was an deluge of investigations although the ones which got the most attention were these three:

1. The Kefauver crime quiz. It made headlines and TV for months and now — but without Kefauver — in a switch from gambling to narcotics it is back on TV again. (In fairness to the members of this committee, it must be said there are so few of them that their particular quiz couldn't slow up the whole senate.)

2. The troops-for-Europe debate, which took up weeks of the senate's time before it agreed with reservations that troops should be sent. This one is over.

3. The MacArthur Inquiry, one of the most sensational quizzes in years. It took up eight weeks of time and involved 28 senators and over 2,000,000 words of testimony. This one is finally finished, too, so far as hearings go.

The proof of congress' tardiness shows up this week, since June 30 — it's Saturday this year — is always an extremely important date.

That's because the government does its business on a fiscal year basis, with the year beginning each July 1 and ending the following June 30.

Before June 30 rolls around congress is supposed to vote the money necessary to run the government for the fiscal year starting the next day, July 1.

Of human nature if she does not now that every man wants to be the head of his own house and that he resents any in-law trying to run it for him, why make your wife understand your point of view. Perhaps that will change her baby ways.

Dear Miss Dix: I am a boy 17, fair looking and have been going with a girl 14 for the last year. Now she has lost interest in me. I am in high school and get very little spending money but I did show her as good a time as possible on what I had. Now she's going with one boy whose father owns a good car, and with another who is a star athlete. How can I win her back?

IRA Answer: Your girl friend is far too young to be going seriously with anyone, and by switching from one steady boy friend to a number of casual ones, she's just showing good sense. Keep her as a friend, but don't press her to go with you alone. You too are too young to get the down with one girl. Both of you have lots of friends and lots of good times coming before you reach the serious stage.

To help settle the inevitable controversy in every girl's family Dorothy Dix has written leaflet D-15, "What Age for Dating?" To obtain a copy send a 3-cent stamped self-addressed envelope to Miss Dix c/o this newspaper, P. O. Box 98, Times Square Station, New York 10, N. Y.

Old Man Par
Takes Beating
at Oakland

Oakmont, Pa., June 25 — (AP) —
The age of Oakland was 72 —
This historic course, which down through the years has withstood the onset of the world's finest golfers to become noted as the nation's toughest test, has finally taken a beating.

Oakmont's old man par — he's 72 — yielded to a half dozen of the 140 starters in yesterday's opening qualifying round in the 33rd PGA championship, and five others in the fast field finished even with him.

Out in front by two strokes with a 345-9, despite losing two strokes on the 15th hole, was big Jim Ferrier, the Australian-born San Francisco who won in 1947. That's the first 9 here in a national tournament since Al Espinosa did it in the final round of the 1927 national Open.

Two strokes back with 71's he went into today's second 18 holes to pick the 4 match play entrants were such luminaries as defending champion Chandler Harper of Portsmouth, Va., Lloyd Man-gum, Chicago, Lew Worsham, host pro and former open champion Walter Burdette, Franklin, Mich.,
contender participating in his first PGA and Red (Porky) Oliver, Scottish, Wash., star who fired eagles on the first and 17th holes to land among the elite.

The National Opens played here in 1927 and 1935 were won with scores of 301 and 299. But it looks as if 140 or so might win the medal today, and that 152-64 might be necessary to get into the championship bracket.

But yesterday five players hit the magic figure on the nose. They were Claude Harmon, former masters winner from Mamaroneck, N.
Y.; Chuck Klein of San Antonio, Tex.; Charles Bassler of Catonsville, Md., who won a casual water contest which gave him a birdie instead of a two-over-par seven of the first hole and New Yorker Peter Cooper of White Plains and bested Al Birsch of Gardner, N.Y.

Harmon, which fell that night is expected to slow Oakland's lightning greens and make even better scores possible today.

Gene Sarazen had a 73, and was very happy about it all.
Sam Snead, the big money man from White Sulphur Springs, W.
Va., also had a 73 and was happy about it. The 33rd PGA championship was the first time since 1927 that three of the first four holes and then faded in the stretch, but no one was counting runs out in today's race.

Nix Hurls Hope
to Win Over Murfreesboro

Edali Nix hurled the Legionnaires to an 8 to 3 victory over the Murfreesboro Sox here last night to strengthen Hope's hold on second place in the Southwest Arkansas loop.

It was a big 6th for Hope, with 6 runs coming across on single by Buddy White, Gilson Ross, Nix, Gunter and Buddy White. The visitors scored their runs in the 1-2-3 innings.

Al Abrams, the Pittsburgh scribe whose Dapper Dan club is promoting the PGA championship, a heavyweight championship fight and a big pro football game all in one season, reports the ticket demand for the Ezzard Charles-Jersey Joe Walcott tussle here next month is more than terrific.
A day after the pasteborders went on sale, Al called the office to reserve a bloc of seats close to the ringside.
"You'll take the 18th row or nothing," he was told.
Vic Ghezzi, former PGA champ who had his troubles with Oakmont's sand traps in the first PGA qualifying round, came into the locker room moaning: "I've seen more sand today than Rommel."

his foreign agents I was the only Caroline Leigh Bart knew and I would be a self-admitted imposter.
Wearily I started walking past darkened houses wide-spaced in the outskirts, closer together as I approached the heart of Hollister.
Once I paused beneath a street light, looked at my watch. It was nearly midnight.

The depot squatted suddenly between the tracks and Main Street, light from a single unshaded bulb that glowed dimly through the narrow window above the night telegrapher's desk at the end of the long, barren room. I almost ran across the cinder parking area.

The green eyeshade gave a ghoulish look to the man's thin face as he turned.
"You're early, m'am. Train ain't due for an hour."
I said, "Oh, it isn't?" Rather stupidly, I suppose, for I hadn't even thought about the 1:09 which had brought me to Hollister, a lifetime ago, it seemed.

He chuckled sympathetically.
"Bad night to be out, all right.
Be colder, too, the paper says."

I NODDED, all too conscious of the keen eyes on my muddy slippers, scratched legs, make-upless face, that hideous bandana business around my head. His eyes told me he was trying to be a gentleman about it, probably thought I'd had to walk home from a date, and she seemed almost relieved when I asked permission to use the telephone.

Feverishly, I thumbed through the dog-eared directory, gave the sleepy operator Bart Jonathan's number. He answered at once.
"Bart?" I took a deep breath.
"Mr. Jonathan, this is Mary Tobin."

"Where are you?"
He practically shouted it at me,
so that I stammered
the depot, but —
"Star there and we'll speak again," he said.
The click of his telephone was in my ear and I was alone.

I could believe me now?
I had had to him, misrepresented myself as he had to his dead client's property. Bart Jonathan had every reason in the world to call the police on me. I was on Carl Jonathan's list. I was a liar. I was not even a woman.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

Oakmont, Pa., June 25 — (AP) —
For more than 20 years Gene Sar-azen a stubby little guy with a good swing, a quick mind and a ready tongue, has been playing against the best golfers in the world. . . . Gene was good enough yesterday to shoot a 73 over the fabulously tough Oakmont course to stay close to the leaders in the PGA championship. . . . So here's not a golfer in the business who could do a better job of comparing the players who rate as tops for all time — Bobby Jones and Ben Hogan. . . . Gene's answer: "They are two golfers who are almost exactly alike."

It's a surprising statement in view of the records which show that Jones dominated the field — amateur and professional — for a full decade while Hogan often has been just the man to beat in a high-class field where anyone could win the tournament.

Silent Treatment
"They're both fellows who like to be alone," Gene commented as he sat on the twps of the Oakmont clubhouse and tried to compare two of the greatest golfers he ever encountered. . . . "They'd take their putters to their rooms and practice at night. Not like Walter Hagen he liked to have the crowd around to look over the gallery. . . . And he'd forget about a match as soon as it was over."

Now Ben will sit with you and talk and answer questions, but you can't get him to talk about playing golf. That's one reason why they're alike. They have the air of concentration and they play one hole at a time. . . . Other players will start off with a good hole and the first thing you know they're playing the fourth or fifth in their minds. . . . And if they begin badly, they think "I'll have to do this or that or I'll have a 58."
They forget about the hole they're playing."

Man To Man
When you pin him down, Sar-azen's conclusion is that Hogan, the little guy with terrific competitive spirit, is a better all-around golfer than Bobby was in his time. . . .
"Jones, in this day, was the better putter," said Gene. "He was terrific on those 50-foot putts
. . . But when you consider everything, I'd have to pick Hogan."

P. S. When you consider the golfer who won the open and the PGA is a 20-year-old kid back in 1922 and who still is good enough to give the best swingers a tussle for a round or two in 1951, what's the matter with a guy named Sarazen?
